LumX Asset Management

LumX’s long history of successful product innovation and creative solution development for sophisticated institutional and private investors rests on the notion that sound investment decisions are those that combine:

- A clear and pragmatic top-down view of market opportunities and risks, combining pertinent observations from the analysis of historical data with structured, forward-looking assessments of market and strategy dynamics;
- A process for identifying, evaluating and allocating to managers whose talent and methods are most appropriate to capture the opportunity set at any time, as determined through rigorous formal reviews of manager strategy, methods and organization. This due diligence is most effective when the research and decision process is under the responsibility of experienced senior investment professionals who directly participate in all phases of these reviews.
- Effective risk management rooted in a high degree of transparency. Analysis of historical data can yield useful information about manager actions and instrument behavior in the past, but the risks taken at any point in time result from current positions. These must be known and their risk exposures correctly understood for robust risk management.
